

somethingspace.com presents

SMOKING-POSITIVE CIGARETTE PACKAGE COVERS

by Liam Eagle

march 31, 2002

INSTRUCTIONS

INTRODUCTION:

Here in Canada, and to a lesser extent in the U.S., the government has really been hammering home its anti-smoking message, forcing cigarette companies to print negative, albeit true, messages on the product packaging. Always eager to help, we thought smokers might like to be reminded of the positive side of smoking; the reasons they took up smoking in the first place. The result, our set of slip-on cigarette package covers, sport our own collection of smoking-positive propaganda.

METHOD:

Print out this file, and cut out around the black outline of each package-cover. Fold along each of the lines, apply glue to the grey tab, and fit it inside the corresponding tap on the opposite side. When the glue dries, fit the cover on over your cigarette package and start feeling better about yourself.

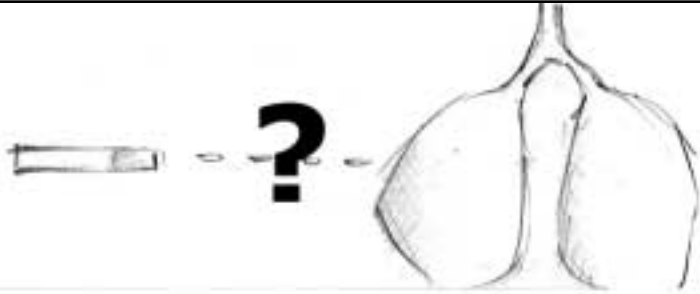

Note: Our apologies to brand loyalists, but due to the constraints of the format, these covers will only fit the "large" and "king-sized" packages of certain cigarette brands, such as Du Maurier, Players, Matinee, etc. If that's not your style, or if you don't smoke, try just reading it.

ENJOY!

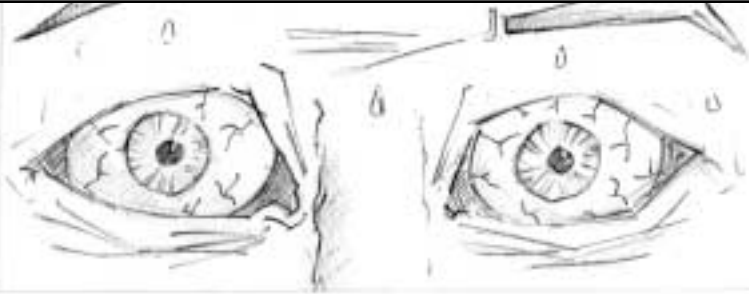

warning: smoking causes extreme coolness

www.somethingspace.com

is it really possible to prove a causal relationship between two variables?

www.somethingspace.com

caution: not smoking causes headaches, irritability, difficulty concentrating and weight gain

www.somethingspace.com

celebrity smoker: Sean Penn

www.somethingspace.com

cigarettes are a good things to give bums instead of your money

www.somethingspace.com

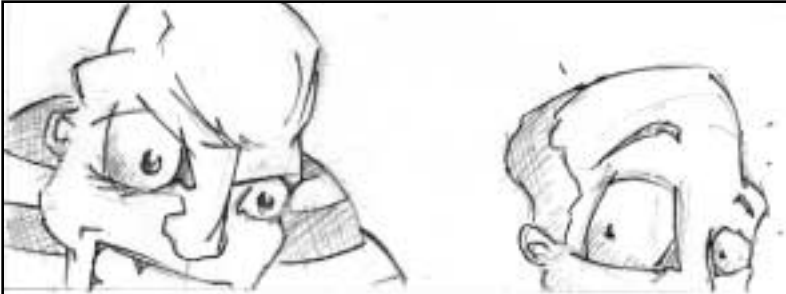

I hate you Mom and Dad

www.somethingspace.com

Mike Wilson's grandfather smoked, and he lived to be 90

www.somethingspace.com

I'm new to jail, and I'm not sure how things work here, but if cigarettes can keep you from raping me in my ass, then thank the sweet lord for cigarettes

www.somethingspace.com