

somethingspace.com presents

SOMETHINGSPACE CIRCUS: JUSTIN'S ADORABLE ADVENTURES

by Liam Eagle, Justin Anderson, and Enis Esmer

illustrated by Liam Eagle

September 29, 2002

INTRODUCTION

Once upon a time, we were all endlessly entertained by the antics of an incorrigible-yet-adorable kid named Jeffy and the frustrated-but-amused reactions of his immediate family. One of his most entertaining tricks, and the one that we at Somethingspace recall most fondly, was his tendency to create the most elaborate adventures from the most mundane of circumstances, like the walk home from school. These adorable adventures of Jeffy's were traced out for us in an elaborate tangle of lines, a path that led ultimately to wholesome satisfaction.

Here at Somethingspace, life is something of a "circus," and, as it turns out, we have an adorable little Jeffy of our own. Ours is Somethingspace co-editor Justin, and he too is able to make elaborate adventures out of simple, mundane occurrences, like prom night or a highschool reunion.

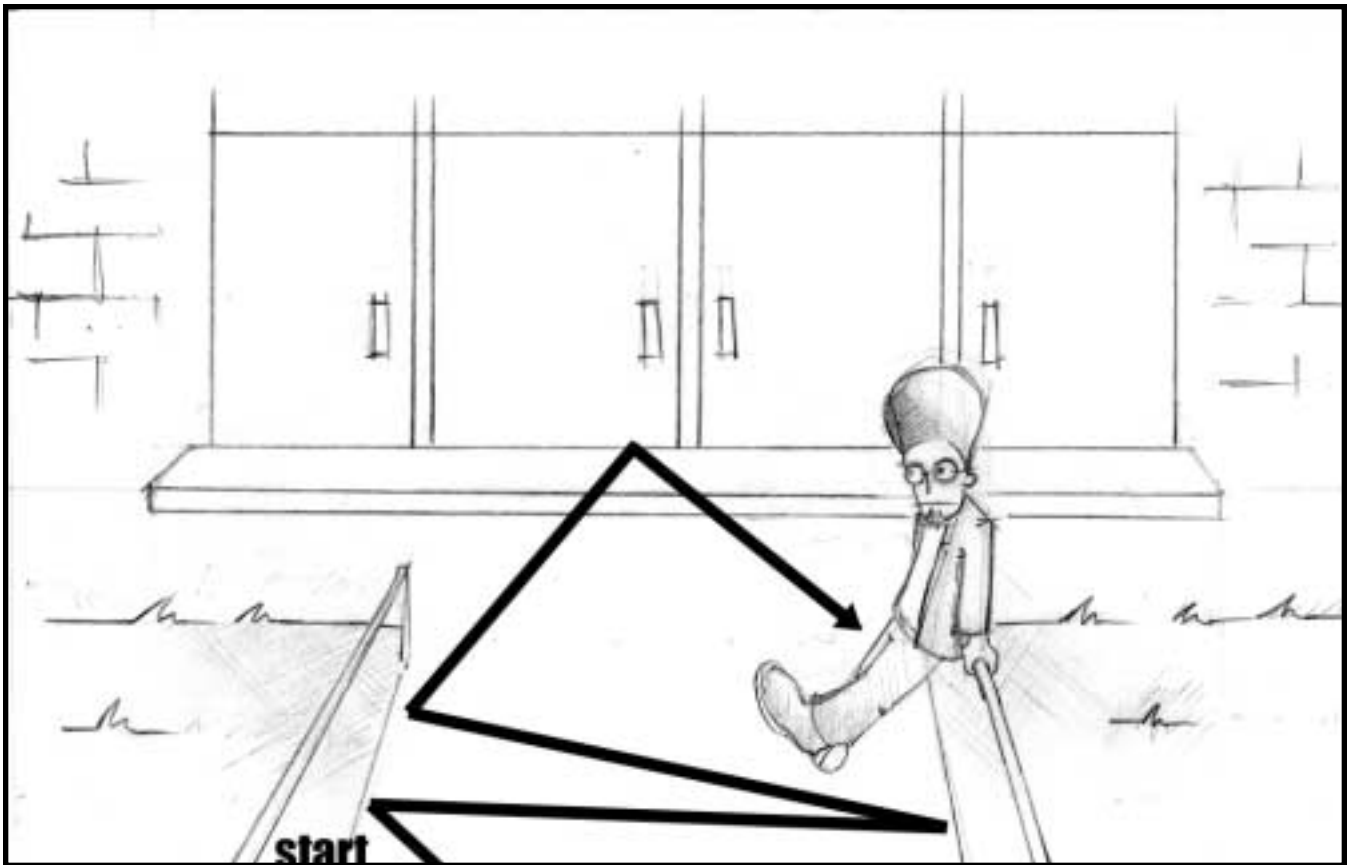

As you might suspect, we have traced out a few of Justin's adorable adventures for you in the hopes that you might find a little wholesome satisfaction in our little guy's great big imagination.

Justin on Prom Night

“Oh Dharma! You’ll never change, you free-spirited vixen!”

Justin at his Highschool Reunion

“I can’t wait to punch Paul Fanshaw in the face!”

Justin at the Soviet Baby Slaughterhouse

“You're free, babies! Free to experience the joys of democracy!”

Justin on the Moon

“Holy shit! What a terrible fate!”