

somethingsspace.com presents

TOASTER FRIENDS

by Justin Anderson, Liam Eagle and Aaron Abrams

illustrated by Justin Anderson and Liam Eagle

July 21, 2002

INSTRUCTIONS

INTRODUCTION:

Let's face it. Kids like toys that transform into shit. Used to be they liked cars that transformed into robots. These days it's monsters that transform into better, cooler monsters. Whatever it is, though, one thing is for sure: the Western world is just not responsible for enough of these transforming toys. It's always those Japanese.

We here at Somethingspace feel that North American children shouldn't be allowed to become fascinated with Japanese things until they're ironic teenagers. But we realize that if we're going to steal our children's attention back from the Japanese, it's going to take some transforming.

Introducing Toaster Friends; an incredible cast of cut-out playmates that transform into amazing things using an ordinary household toaster. It's so easy, anyone can do it!

STEP 1:

Simple! Pick the toaster friend you want to play with, and cut them out.

STEP 2:

Place your Toaster Friends in the toaster and watch them transform!

ENJOY!

NAME:

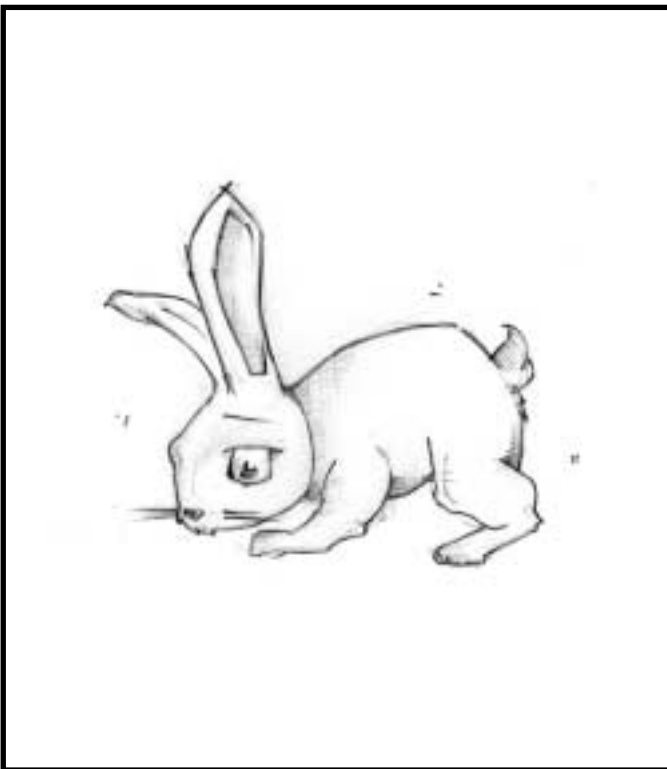

Little Bear

DESCRIPTION:

A young native boy who dreams of being a great warrior

TRANSFORMS INTO:

A mighty brave

NAME:

Hoppy the Weakling

DESCRIPTION:

Adorable bunny

TRANSFORMS INTO:

Asteroid

NAME:

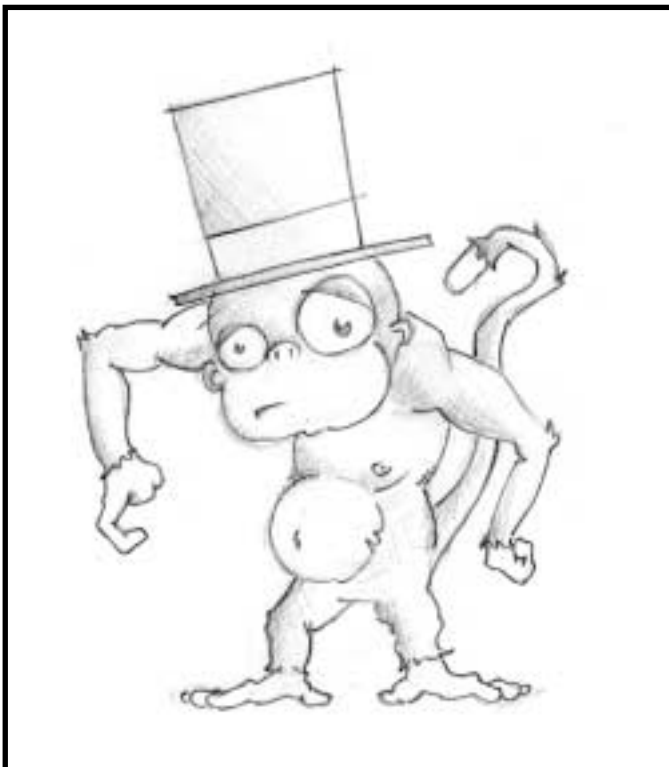

Sweet Pierre

DESCRIPTION:

Sugar burglar

TRANSFORMS INTO:

Cookie Tree

NAME:

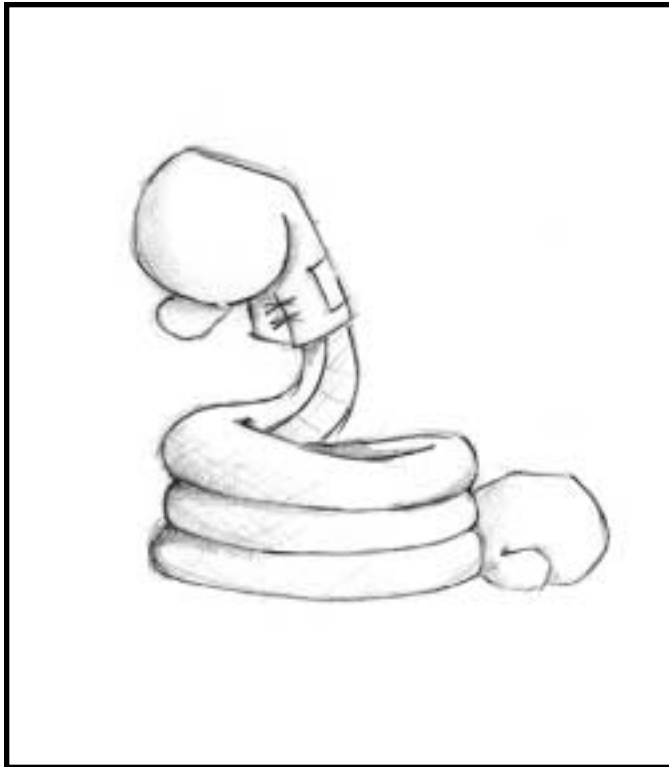

Mr. Business

DESCRIPTION:

Monkey in a top hat

TRANSFORMS INTO:

Bear in a top hat

NAME:

Snake Jones Jr.

DESCRIPTION:

Snake with boxing gloves on its head and its tail

TRANSFORMS INTO:

A gun that shoots former presidents

NAME:

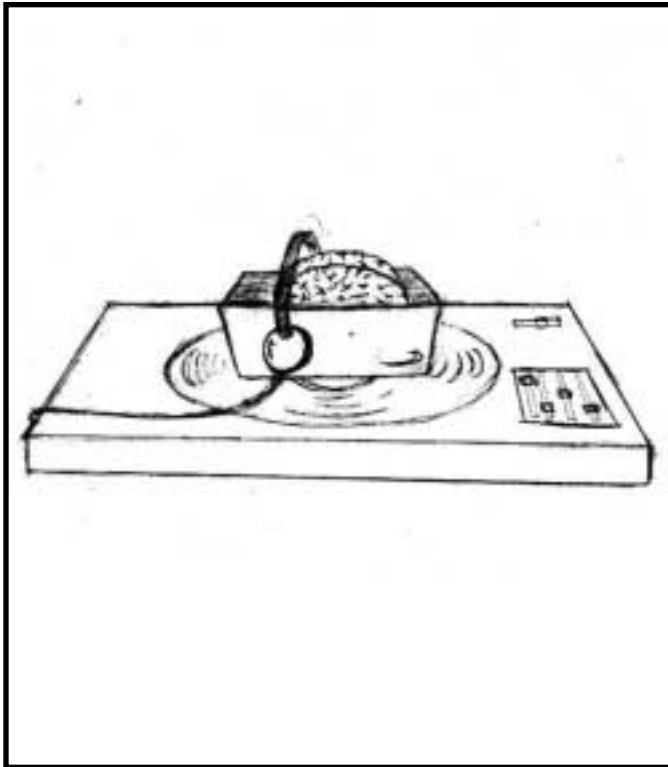

Spartacus

DESCRIPTION:

Duck-billed cat with newspaper wings

TRANSFORMS INTO:

A gold suitcase

NAME:

DJ Cortex

DESCRIPTION:

A brain in a shoe-box on a turntable

TRANSFORMS INTO:

A bespectled apple that can reach through time

NAME:

Dusty

DESCRIPTION:

Mental image of a cowboy with tank-treads for legs and dreams for six-shooters

TRANSFORMS INTO:

Jennie Garth sitting on the shoulders of Tori Spelling and wearing a long coat so they look like one person, starring as Vegas showgirl Sexie Summers in a hypothetical Academy Award-winning movie that does not exist